

Design your own education website Wednesday, 26th September 2018

This is the most exciting and innovative professional development opportunity that the AEU and IEU have offered to CRTs. Register and attend this conference and you will create your own website. The conference will take all participants through a process where they create their own website and populate that website with teaching resources. You will leave this conference with your own website that you have designed and constructed.

You can attend at the IEU building in Southbank or participate online via the live video stream.

Conference Description

All people who register for the conference will participate in the same program. Each person will design and develop their own resource rich website.

Each person (whether attend in person or online) will leave the conference having developed their own website and will have populated it with resources that they use regularly and resources that they have discovered in collaboration with other participants.

The conference will:

- Demystify the creation of websites and show you how easily they can be created
- Explore website design—what can be easily done as a designer and what makes a website user friendly (ideas that you can use in the classroom)
- Investigate website content—what information should be located on a high quality education website
- Demonstrate website access—how can you ensure that you can access your website from any computer in any classroom in any school where you have internet access
- Allow you to develop your own education website and populate it with resources for Literacy, Numeracy, STEM, Humanities, the Arts and other subject specific areas

For those who attend in person you must make every effort to bring along a laptop. A tablet device such as an iPad will be a reasonable alternative. Some laptops will be made available on the day—but we cannot guarantee that you will have one to one access
