W/ ABBEY BOYER

As a graduate teacher one of the most common phrases you will hear is the need to 'differentiate in your teaching'. What does it really mean? Simply that students require adjustments to the learning programs to be engaged and challenged. You should be constantly engaged in the process of making adjustments to create meaningful and engaging learning experiences for all students.

In this session the presenter, an experienced teacher at primary and secondary level, will outline the top 10 techniques she uses to differentiate the learning program for her students.
